

ASIA PURCHASES OUR CIGARETTES.

Billions Are Shipped Annually from United States.

CHINA AND JAPAN BUY.

Trade Is Increasing Every Year In Spite of Crusades Against the "Weed."

It may sound like talk of sending coal to Newcastle to say cigarettes are sent to the Orient. But the fact remains, that fully eight billions of American cigarettes are consumed annually in foreign lands.

The chief point of shipment for American cigarettes is from Vancouver and Seattle. In addition to this port of departure, many millions are sent from New York and Boston in the East, and San Francisco in the West. Even Manila, one of the world's greatest tobacco ports, receives its quota of American cigarettes, and Turkey, too, is not an unimportant consignee in the cigarette trade with the United States.

All this is due to the fact that the American cigarette is mild, and, as a rule, free from drugs. The fact is that the American cigarette is so cheap that it does not pay to drug it. A popular superstition among many cigarette smokers is that the ordinary American cigarette contains either hemp or opium in some form. As a matter of fact, both of these drugs are far too expensive to permit of their use in cheap cigarettes.

An instance of the widespread use of the American cigarette is shown by the Customs House clearings at Seattle. Since January 1, 1908, carloads have been shipped from there to China, Japan and Manila. Each of these carloads contains 32,700 pounds, or a total of 6,470,382 pounds, from the first of the year. In each carload were 817,725 packages, or a total of 8,177,250 cigarettes to a car.

As nearly as can be calculated roughly, the 1908 cars represent in round numbers about 1,619,000,000 cigarettes.

This figure, however, drops below the usual number. In January the new Japanese tariff law went into effect, and before its operation there was a wild rush to flood the country with American cigarettes. As this supply has not been consumed, the demand is necessarily light as yet, but the cigarette manufacturers say that when it is consumed the export will be as great as ever.

Recently speaking, the usual demand for American cigarettes in China and Japan reaches about 10,500,000 pounds. From this port it is a little more, so combined the total export is about eight billions of cigarettes a year.

A curious phase of the cigarette business is that it is steadily increasing, despite the attacks made upon it. The crusade against their use occasionally affects the sales, but in the long run it is slight.

In the trans-Pacific countries the consumption of American cigarettes is steadily increasing, and it is prophesied that before the end of the decade the exports from the West Coast alone will reach the grand aggregate of ten billions a year.

FADS AND HOBBIES OF MILLIONAIRES.

John D. Rockefeller Plays a Fiddle and Willie Raises Deer.

The millionaires and heiresses who own beautiful mansions along the American Rhine and the northern shore of Long Island Sound have many odd hobbies. No two are the lover of the same fad. Besides, each tries to rival the other in making their estates most attractive with flower beds, fountains, private lakes, Italian and French gardens and pergolas.

For instance, Willie Rockefeller, the son of William Rockefeller, Sr., has a hobby for raising deer. At his country place, at Greenwich, he has laid out a private park and stocked it with the choicest of deer. On the contrary, his father goes in for thoroughbred horses and rare flowers of this and the old country.

His brother, John D. Rockefeller, is a devotee of the violin and of travelling. While living at his country house, Boxwood, at Pocantico Hills, he may often be found at sunset playing his violin.

Mrs. Rockefeller, who is rather democratic, is a great lover of music. She is a fine pianist and violinist, and often with her husband and other guests, she plays duets and sing together.

Quiet and amiable Miss Helen Miller Gould, the heiress to some of Jay Gould's millions, has a hobby for carrying on charitable work. It is also her fad to have every book and relic that is presented to her or that she buys photographed. Her collection of snap shots and other photos of valuable scenes, books, rolls of honor, certificates and numerous other articles is worth thousands of dollars to any museum.

Miss Helen Ripley Benedict is a collector of rare French posters and the stable of her father's estate, Indian Harbor, is decorated with the rare specimens of French and Italian artists which she collected during her travels in Europe. The posters are arranged around the walls of the stable and give it a very pretty interior effect. Her father, Banker E. C. Benedict, when not dabbling in stocks, cares more for fishing and yachting than he does for anything else.

Frank J. Gould, brother of Miss Helen M. Gould, is a dog fancier, and his kennels at Lyndhurst, Irvington-on-the-Hudson, contain the finest private collection in the United States of St. Bernard dogs.

H. M. Flieger, the "Standard Oil" magnate, is a great fancier of fast horses and crack yachts, while both Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin are noted for their yachting fame.

George R. Read and William H. Catlin go in for fast horses and the finest specimens of cattle on their farms at Port Chester.

Banker Adrian Iselin and venerable Joseph Park are both devoted to horticulture. Both these millionaires are devoting considerable space on their estates to the raising of rare American beauty roses and carnations, for which both have a passion.

William E. Iselin is a great huntsman, while John D. Archbold and Edwin Gould are noted for the excellent manner in which they can drive a four or an eight-in-hand.

His Idea of It.
"Don't you fear the strong arm of the law?" asked the friend.
"Not always," answered the puglist, who was engaged in preparations for a meeting. "There's no doubt about the law's having a strong arm. But it's like the rest of us. It spends a great deal of time talking things over when it might be reaching for some one's solar plexus."

Court Record.
"What is it that interests you so much in that paper?"
"I'm looking over the court record."
"The court record?"
"Yes—the list of marriage licenses."

M'GIFFERT'S BOOK DENOUNCED AGAIN.

Doctor Mullally Says He Must Recant or Leave the Church.

NO ACTION YET TAKEN.

New York Presbytery Fails to Decide Local Matters of Interest.

The adjournment of the New York Presbytery on Monday without taking action on several questions that are agitating conservative Presbyterians is commented upon with some severity by both clergy and laymen.
It was hoped the differences arising from Dr. McGiffert's famous book might be adjusted one way or the other, and that the discussion would be ended. Instead, the whole controversy is postponed until October, and in the meantime the learned Doctor is to be persuaded to resign, in order to avoid another heresy trial.

Dr. Francis P. Mullally, speaking on the subject yesterday, said:
"The doctrine laid down by Dr. McGiffert in his book is clearly at variance with Presbyterianism. The two are utterly inconsistent. Dr. McGiffert must either recant what he has written or leave the Church. I am sure he sees the situation in the same light that I do. No doubt the Conference will have arrived at an amicable solution of the problem before the next session of the Presbytery."

CHINESE FIGHT THE TELEGRAPH.

Natives Resenting the Innovation Cut Down the Poles.

CURIOUS MESSAGES.

Translated from Words Into Numbers and Then Back Again.

In an interesting article just published in the Electrical World and Engineer, Professor Francis B. Crocker tells of the curious methods of the Chinese in sending telegraphic messages and of the serious opposition of the natives in many parts of the empire to the modern convenience.
So opposed to innovations are the natives in some districts that they cut the wires and chopped down the poles. As they have discovered, however, that the poles can be used for fuel and the copper wire is valuable, their active antagonism may not be wholly due to fanaticism.

But the most curious part of the Chinaman's connection with telegraphy is his method of sending messages. As the Chinese language has no alphabet, but in its written form is composed of an infinite number of symbols, each of which represents a word, it can be seen that an extensive code is necessary. This difficulty was encompassed by means of numbers, as Professor Crocker explains.

HAS GONE NAKED FOR 20 YEARS.

Indian Matricide Keeps an Old Vow Strictly.

SLEEPS IN THE OPEN.

Killed Woman Accidentally, but Thinks He Has Not Yet Atoned.

H. P. Myton, United States Indian agent at White Rocks, Utah, has among the Ute Indians on his reservation a man who for twenty years has done awful penance to atone for the accidental killing of his mother, but who, in spite of what he has passed through, thinks that he has not yet suffered sufficiently for his transgression.

The killing was entirely accidental, and did not punish him. His conscience, however, was his accuser, and it held him up as a criminal.
Which his first burst of grief was over he imposed a harsh sentence upon himself. He made a solemn vow that for the rest of his life he would not wear clothing or enter a house, temple or other dwelling.

For more than twenty years the redskin has kept his word. He sleeps in the open air with a piece of an old blanket about three feet square hung over him on some sticks. He is entirely nude.
Mr. Myton says that the Indian lies on the ground through the winter, even when the thermometer goes as low as 40 degrees below zero.

BIG MODERN STORE FOR MEXICO CITY.

Will Be Run as Are Department Houses Here.

MOTOR PAID WAGONS.

New York Experts Will Have Charge of Various Branches.

The City of Mexico is to have the latest thing in the department store line. Impressed with the success of such enterprises in this country, a number of Mexican capitalists have formed a syndicate which has put up a million dollars with the intention of giving their republic the real thing in the way of a modern store.

It is the intention to have the "Centro Mercantil," by which name this new enterprise is known, one of the most advanced, carrying every conceivable article of merchandise of the highest quality.

One of their buyers told a Journal reporter that everything with the exception of importations from Europe has been purchased, and that competent men and women have been secured to take charge of the various departments.
The building in which the new enterprise will have its home is a magnificent structure erected at a cost of $2,000,000 by an American architect and is equipped with three electric elevators and an electric light plant.
Jose de Teresa Meranda, brother-in-law of President Diaz, is sole owner of the building and also president of the new company.

COURT SETS ASIDE BURNHAM'S PLEA.

Mutual Reserve Fund Life's President Must Pay Debt.

A CHARGE OF FRAUD.

Former Employee Says That He Signed a Release Under False Information.

Justice Scott has overruled a demurrer in the suit of Maton D. Moss against Frederick A. Burnham, president of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, in which the defendant's contention is that the plaintiff cannot maintain an action involving a release of the release unless he offers to return all that he has received thereunder. Where a person effects a compromise of a debt admittedly due by him, by fraudulent representations, and procures a promissory note in return for the amount due, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to repay the amount received. The demurrer admits the original indebtedness of defendant to plaintiff for a much larger sum than has been paid.

According to the complaint, Burnham fraudulently represented that he was bankrupt and without means to pay; that he had had to pay out large sums of money, and had a mortgage on his residence. By these statements he induced Moss to sign a release in full on payment of a second $50,000. Moss sued in the Supreme Court, through George E. Joseph, to have the release set aside on the ground of the defendant's alleged fraud, and to recover the $50,000. Former Justice William E. Cohen for the defence demurred to the complaint on the ground that it improperly joined two causes of action and that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. In setting aside this plea, Justice Scott says:

The defendant's contention is that the plaintiff cannot maintain an action involving a release of the release unless he offers to return all that he has received thereunder. Where a person effects a compromise of a debt admittedly due by him, by fraudulent representations, and procures a promissory note in return for the amount due, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to repay the amount received. The demurrer admits the original indebtedness of defendant to plaintiff for a much larger sum than has been paid.

WHY ARE MEN WEAK?

They Burn the Candle at Both Ends.

During my 30 years' experience as a specialist I have heard many queer confessions. I could put together a pretty interesting book upon the vagaries of man's imagination. I have never written that sort of a volume, but I do give in my

the very best I can offer in advice for those who find they must assist nature in her efforts to overcome the result of some transgression of her laws. My specialty is the treatment of nerve, glandular and organic weaknesses of men—young or old—which result from youthful indiscretions or later excesses. I treat and cure these disorders in a natural manner,

Without the Use of Drugs.

I employ nature's only strengthener, the galvanic current of Electricity, and to apply that properly it must be used at least seven hours a day for two or three months. That is why I invented a portable chain battery over 25 years ago. That is why my present battery, the famous Dr. Sanden Electric Belt, with attachment for men, is the greatest strength giver the world has ever known. It gives you all the current you want, and as you wear it at night while asleep it gives it to you for at least seven hours at a time. It sends the pleasant, soothing electricity from back to front, through the kidneys, liver, stomach, bladder, prostate gland and all weakened parts.

Free Consultation at Office.

Drop in at my office to-day if possible, when you may examine the belt and test current. All advice free. If too far to call, write for above book, which explains all and is sent in plain sealed envelope, free.
